Information Collected by this Web site

You may visit this site and learn about Christian Mediations anonymously. Although Christian Mediations uses a Web site visitor statistics program that compiles information about visitors to this site (such as browser type, pages accessed, duration of visit, and other usage statistics) that program does not identify you. The program also collects your IP address, but this information generally does not reveal your identity. This Web site does not use "cookies" - small files that are sent to your browser and stored on your hard drive to record how and when you use a site.

Christian Mediations collects personally identifiable information about you only if you voluntarily provide it to us by requesting further information.

How the Information is Used

If you choose to provide Christian Mediations with personally identifiable information, we will use such information to respond to your inquiry. We may provide this information to third parties if we believe in our discretion that it would be helpful in responding to you. For example, if you ask Christian Mediations to provide you with names of qualified professionals who can recommend us, we may provide your request and contact information to such qualified professionals so that they may respond to your request directly. If, in the future, Christian Mediations' business changes form -- for example, by merger or partnership -- we may transfer your personally identifiable information to the reorganized business entity. We will also disclose your personally identifiable information if we reasonably believe we are required to do so by law, regulation or other government authority.
